“I’ve had so many students come to me about their anxiety over the high stakes of these MCAS tests. The tests don’t show a student’s potential—they just add unnecessary stress.

I’m voting Yes on Two to replace the MCAS.”

Take Power Back
From the MCAS

Teachers, parents, and pediatricians all agree:
the MCAS harms students.

It causes too much stress and anxiety for our students, creating a negative learning environment and hurting students' education.

The MCAS can't even evaluate whether a student has the skills to succeed after high school: it can't measure critical thinking, problem-solving skills, or creativity.

Vote Yes on Two and return control to parents and teachers who should be working together to help students succeed.
